ABOUT THE ARTIST

Jason Bouldin, a native of Mississippi, graduated from Harvard University with a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Art History. His late father and teacher, Marshall Bouldin III, was one of America's premier portrait artists. Jason has won the Grand Prize in the International Portrait competition sponsored by the Portrait Society of America. He has achieved international recognition through repeated showings at the Royal Society of Portrait Painters annual Exhibitions in London. His public commissions hang in varied locations, including the Judiciary Room of the U.S. House of Representatives, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Harvard's University Hall, Wilcox House in London, and more than a dozen U.S. Courthouses. He has executed more than twenty official portraits for the federal judiciary. Some of those works hang in the Thomas F. Eagleton U.S. Courthouse in St. Louis, the Warren E. Burger Federal Building in St. Paul, and in the Richard Sheppard Arnold Courthouse in Little Rock.

Jason's studio and home are in Oxford, Mississippi, near the University of Mississippi Campus.
